International Student Design Competition

2021 Reimagining the Experience of Public Transportation in a Post-pandemic Metropolis

How can design accelerate the transition from the end of the pandemic to a new experience of public transportation?

Aimed at students in arts, design, engineering, architecture, psychology, film-making, literature, sociology, finance and management, this ideas competition asks:

1. How can we renew the pleasure of public transportation following the decline in ridership experienced in the last year?
2. How can we redesign the spaces and places of public transportation for encouraging the use of public transit?

Submission deadline: May 14, 2021
