

Why reWriting
the History?

March

April

May

June

July

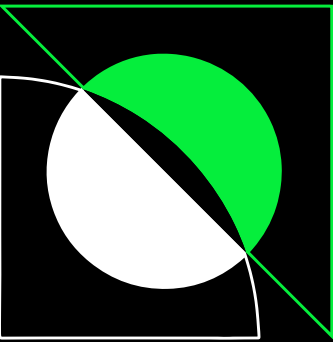

Aug

User Interface & Experience Design

App Development

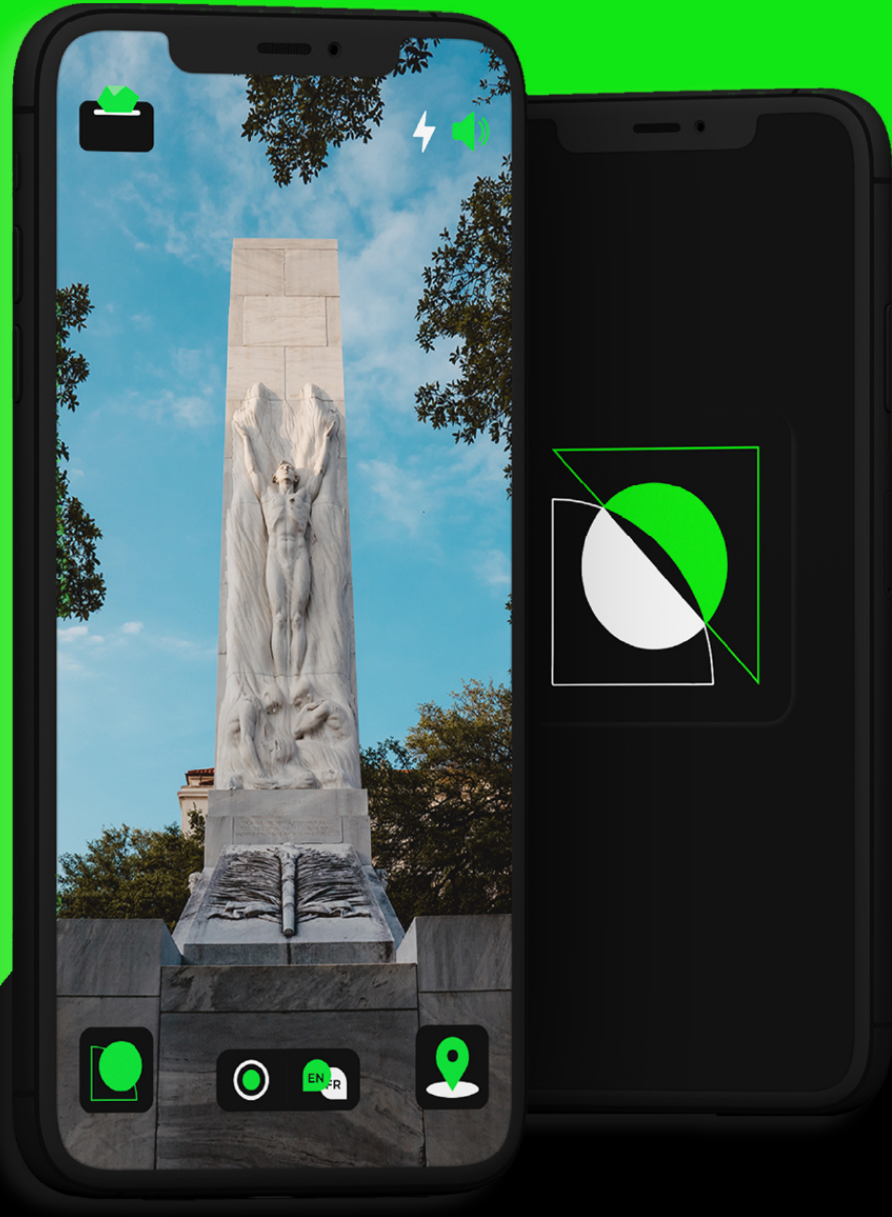

Article

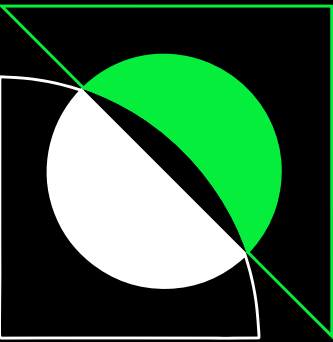

Research-Creation Thesis

User Interface & Experience Design

More

Research-Creation Thesis

Committee

Carmela Cucuzzella

M. Wright

Martine Racine

Question:

How can Augmented Reality (AR) act as a mediator in decolonizing public space through anti-monumentalism?

Table of Contents

Introduction

Context/Theoretical

Methodology

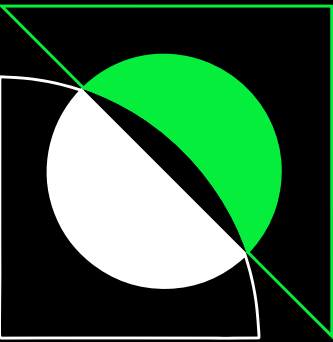

Outcomes

Counter-Productive Outcomes

Speculation

Limitations

Conclusion

Research-Creation Thesis

How can Augmented Reality (AR) act as a mediator in decolonizing public space through anti-monumentalism?

Table of Contents

Introduction

Context/Theoretical ►

Methodology

Outcomes

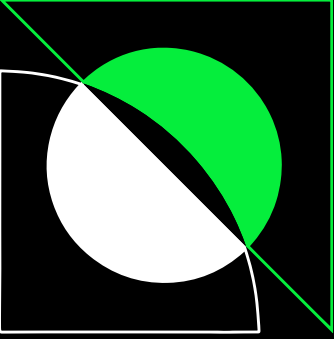

Counter-Productive Outcomes

Speculation

Limitations

Conclusion

- * Right to the city
- * City and Memories
- * Freedom of Speech
- * Monumentalism in Canada
- * Anti-Monumentalism
- * History of Canada
- * Social Force of Design
- * Critical Design
- Affirmative Design
- * Decolonizing Design
- * Designers as Authors
- * Participatory Design
- * Design as mediator
- * Digital Storytelling
- * AR/VR/XR
- * Augmented Reality
- * Location-Based AR

Article

Journals

Design Studies – Elsevier

Artifact: Journal of Design Practice

The Journal of Design Thinking

The Design Journal
An International Journal for All Aspects of Design

New Media & Society: SAGE Journals

Educational Technology and Society – Scimago

¹ Online Media Platform: Free Speech vs. Hate Speech

² Black Lives Matter and global anti-monumentalism?

Confederate General Stonewall Jackson in Richmond, Virginia

Jefferson Davis In Frankfort, Kentucky

Confederate General Stonewall Jackson in Richmond, Virginia

Jefferson Davis In Frankfort, Kentucky

Christopher Columbus in Boston

Unknown In Virginia

Christopher Columbus in Boston

Dick Dowling in Houston city

Albert Pike In Washington, D.C.

John C. Calhoun In Charleston, South Carolina

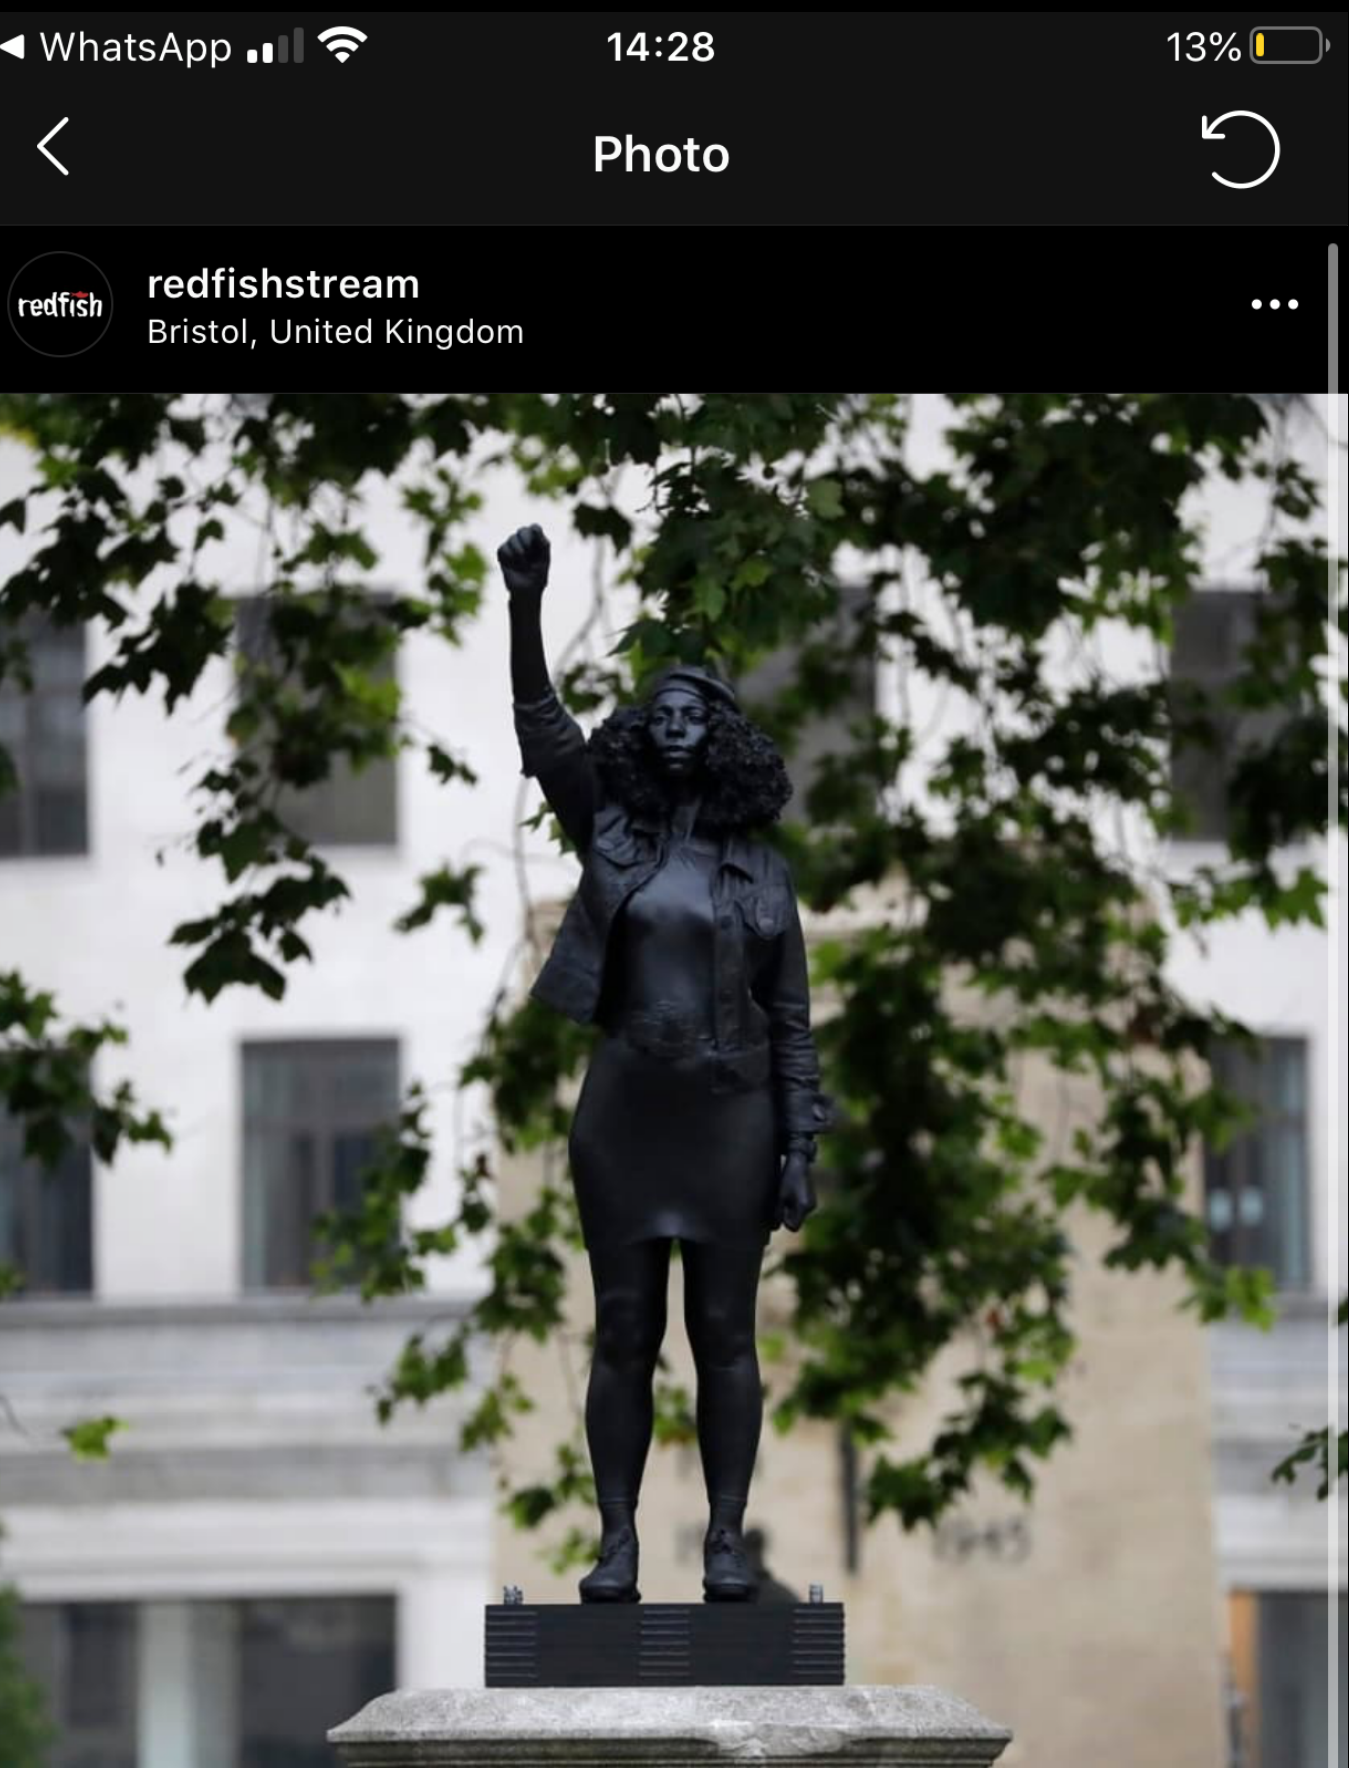

Christopher Columbus in downtown Miami

Thomas Ball's Emancipation Memorial in Park Square in Boston

Robert E. Lee Monument in Richmond in Virginia

Thank You!

